SAY, DAVE, HOW MANY KINDS OF NURSES HAVE THEY GOT IN THIS HOSPITAL? I SEE THREE DIFFERENT UNIFORMS HERE!
I WONDER HOW THEY ALL GOT INTO NURSING? I THINK I'LL ASK THEM...
"I WAS A MEDICAL CORPSMAN IN THE WAR. IT WAS PRETTY RUGGED, BUT I HELPED TO SAVE A LOT OF LIVES AND DECIDED IT WAS THE CAREER FOR ME. SO AFTER THE WAR, I TOOK A 3-YEAR COURSE AND BECAME A REGISTERED NURSE, SPECIALIZING IN CARE OF MEN."
"MY HIGH SCHOOL CLUB DID VOLUNTEER WORK AT OUR TOWN'S HOSPITAL. I LEARNED A LOT WATCHING THE STUDENT NURSES AND FOUND I LOVED TAKING CARE OF PEOPLE.
"AFTER A 4-YEAR COLLEGE NURSING COURSE, I BECAME A REGISTERED NURSE. I'M GETTING MARRIED NEXT YEAR, BUT I'LL STILL KEEP ON WITH MY CAREER."
WE HAD A BIG FAMILY, AND I WANTED TO BE SELF-SUPPORTING AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. I KNEW ABOUT THE SHORTAGE OF NURSES, AND TOOK A 1-YEAR COURSE TO BECOME A LICENSED PRACTICAL NURSE. I LOVE IT BECAUSE I CAN HELP SICK, DISCOURAGED PEOPLE FEEL MORE COMFORTABLE."

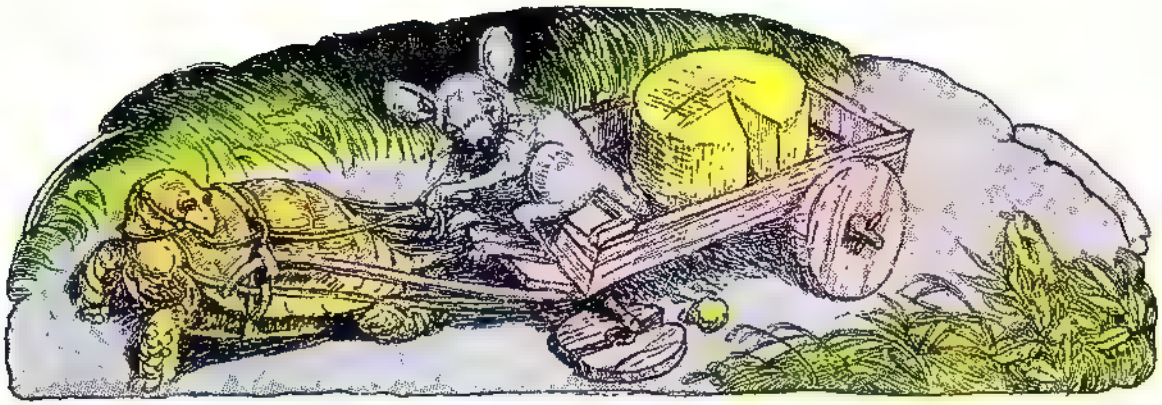
The Collector



THE squirrels were always collecting. And what they collected mostly was hickory nuts and acorns and sometimes other special goodies. Of all the squirrels, Stoney Squirrel had the largest collection. His treetrunk was so chockfull that Stoney had no place to entertain visitors.

So, when Simpson Squirrel came to visit him one day, he had to stand up while Stoney entertained him with stories about his great collection.

"See this pile of acorns?" Stoney said. "Well, I happened to get them when I was—"

"Excuse me," Simpson interrupted, "but I came to tell you about something rather important."

"Yes?" And Stoney frowned, because he hated to be interrupted, especially when he was discussing his collection.

"Well, you know Sam Squirrel?"

Stoney smiled. Didn't everyone know poor Sam? Actually it wasn't too nice of Stoney to smile. Perhaps it seemed funny to him that Sam was such a poor collector, but really it was sad. Poor Sam! No matter how hard he tried to collect enough acorns for the winter, he never could find enough even to last him through the autumn. As for collecting exciting things, poor Sam never seemed to find anything more exciting than an old shoe or a dirty string.

"Well," Simpson continued, "poor Sam's starving!"

"What do you want me to do about it?" huffed Stoney.

"Well, I thought—after all, you have so much—"

"Give away something? But that would ruin my collection! No. I'm sorry. No, no!"

So Simpson left, and went back to tell Sam Squirrel the bad news. "I guess you'll just have to keep trying, Sam," Simpson said.

"I feel lucky today," Sam replied, and he smiled hopefully as Simpson gave him a good-luck pat on his thin back.

A while later Sam was searching for nuts when he noticed something. It was a small black box in the grass. When he opened it, he saw that it was a sewing kit. There was a thimble, a button, a needle, and some thread.

"Boy, what a swell thing to find," Sam thought.

But when he brought the sewing kit back to his treetrunk to show it to Simpson, his friend said sadly, "I can't see that that will be any use to you, Sam."

And when Stoney Squirrel came along a moment later, he burst out laughing at Sam's find. "Ha ha ha! You're supposed to collect food, dope! I thought you were starving! What good will that do you? Ha ha ha!"

The next day Sam was hungrier than ever—a little weaker, a little sadder. He had begun to feel a tear gather in the corner of his eye when, all of a sudden, a voice cried out, "HELP!"

When Sam rushed down to see what the trouble was, he saw a bee struggling in some quicksand. "Help! I'm getting sucked under!" the bee screamed.

Back to his sewing kit Sam rushed. He returned just in time with the sewing thread, tied the button onto the end of it, and threw it out to the bee. The bee caught it and as he held tight, Sam pulled him to safety.

"How can I ever thank you for saving my life!" the bee gasped. Then he said, after thinking for a moment, "I know! I'll give you a honeycomb."

A while later Sam heard a voice say, "Shucks! Now I'm stuck!"

He went to see what was the matter. A mouse had been driving a big load of cheese in a wagon, to bring it home. But when his tiny wagon bounced against a rock, a wheel had broken off. "If only I had a new wheel," he moaned, "I could get this wagonful of cheese home."

"I've got a wheel you can have!" Sam said, pricking up his ears. "Wait a minute and I'll go get it. I think it'd be just the right size for your wagon!"

Sure enough, it was. Together the mouse and squirrel attached it to the wagon. Before the mouse drove off, he said, "Thanks a lot. Here's some cheese for being so generous."

An hour later Sam was sitting looking at his cheese and his honeycomb when he heard another voice. "What I need," it said, "is some kind of a helmet."

Sam went to see who needed a helmet. And when he saw that it was a grasshopper, he asked, "Why do you need a helmet?"

"To protect myself from the sharp blades of grass as I walk through the fields! But where can I find a helmet small enough to fit my little head?"

"I have the perfect thing," Sam said. And then he added, "Could you use a walking stick, too? You could push the blades of grass aside with it!"

The grasshopper nodded. It was a good idea! In the next few days, Sam received a barrel of acorns and hickory nuts from Granger Grasshopper in appreciation of Sam's help!

A week later Stoney Squirrel and Simpson Squirrel came by to visit Sam. When Sam poked his head out the hole in his tree-trunk, Simpson said, "Thank goodness you're looking much fatter. I'm happy you're not starving any more. I guess you found a few acorns?"

Stoney said, "I've decided I can spare one peanut after all. Here." But when he handed it to Sam, Sam refused it very politely.

"I'll manage all right without it, thanks. You might need it!" Sam smiled. "Come on in."

What a sight met the squirrels' eyes! An enormous honeycomb, big enough to last six winters! A huge cheese, big enough to last eight winters! Acorns and nuts galore, enough to last a hundred winters!

"Did you find all this?" gasped Stoney, very jealous.

"No, but I found something just as good," Sam laughed, "a sewing kit!"

"Yes," Simpson nodded," we know! —but what good did that do you?"

"If you're determined enough, you can do with what you have! As you can see, that sewing kit proved very valuable!"
